Here at Protest, we want to make the world a better place for boarders. That means safe guarding this wonderful planet for the generations of boarders to come. To do this, we need to work on our sustainability. So we are focusing on more responsible manufacturing, better fabric sourcing, and assessing our impact so that we can improve just how sustainable we are. We are on a mission. It's a journey really - a journey to Green Up. And what is Green Up? It's our path to sustainability; it's our action verb to describe what we're striving for - greener production, greener products for a greener planet! The journey isn't easy so we're taking it step by step. Join us. Set a goal. Break your journey up into blocks that you can build on. One block on top of another, forming the path to sustainability.

Together, Let's

GREEN UP

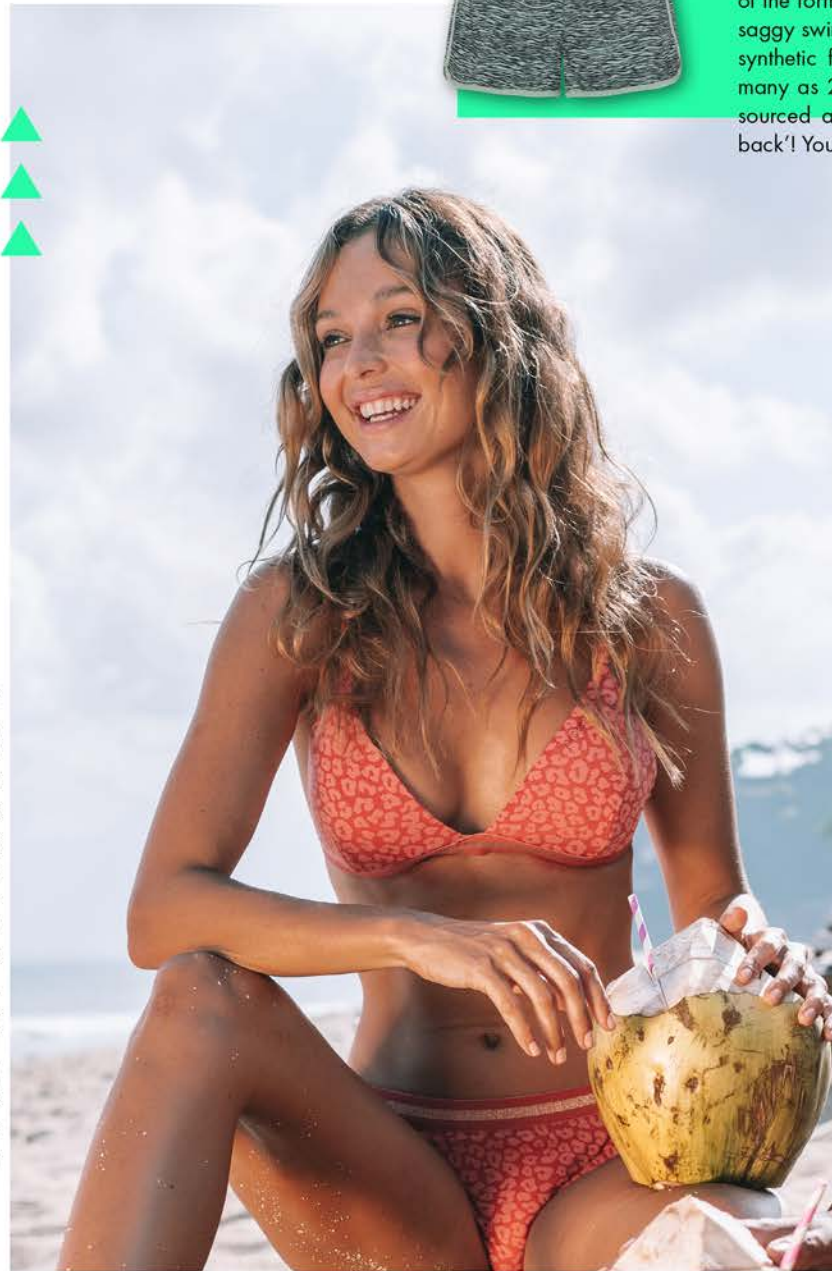

RECYCLED POLYESTER

Polyester is an important component in our clothing, which is durable, flexible and quick drying. A big problem with polyester is that there is an overabundance of this plastic, filling up landfills and polluting our oceans. So, to address this issue, a selection of our garments is made using recycled polyester. This polyester is created by processing discarded P.E.T (polyethylene Terephthalate) bottles into fabric. We're using this recycled product in swimsuits, bikinis and our entire SUP Surf series.

RECYCLED ELASTANE

Elastane. Swimwear just wouldn't be the same without it! It provides stretch and 'bounce back' as we like to call it. The stretchiness of elastane makes the swimwear fit to the body while allowing for totally flexibility. Its 'bounce back' properties are important for the recovery of the form of the swimwear after wearing. No saggy swimwear please. Elastane is a complex synthetic fibre, which like polyester, takes as many as 200 years to break down. So we've sourced a recycled elastane for our 'bounce back'! You'll find it in our Redwood swim shorts.

BAMBOO CHARCOAL

We're using bamboo charcoal in our Noosa swim shorts. Sounds crazy doesn't it! Burnt bamboo. But by breaking down bamboo charcoal into tiny particles, it can be combined with polyester to create a fabric that has amazing breathability, UV and odor resistance, as well as being supremely comfortable and sustainable. Bamboo grows pretty fast and needs less water than other trees. Also, it is not necessary to use insecticides and pesticides in bamboo cultivation, as bamboo is pest resistant. By using this material, the carbon impact the manufacturing of these swim shorts has on planet will be reduced.

RECYCLED POLYESTER

We want to help people focus on the pure joy of boarding, getting out there and having a blast. So we create clothing to help you do just that. The fabric that these clothes are made from needs to be flexible, quick drying and durable. These are the properties of polyester. But polyester is plastic and face it, we shouldn't be making any more of it than we really need to. So we've sourced recycled polyester, repurposing used plastic into functional fabric from which we have created our Ailmer long sleeve rash guard and the Yessine 14" swim shorts.

BOARD SHORTS

Our boardshorts. Made for the athlete, our boardshorts are technically advanced to help you get the best out of your ride. All of our boardshorts form part of our PVRE Green series in which we have fused the supremely technical with the sustainable. These shorts are made from recycled polyester, created by turning used PET bottles into yarn and weaving it into this functional fabric. This material is durable, quick drying and has 4way stretch so you are unrestricted. No PFC's were used in the creation of any of our swimwear. With other technical details like an anti-slip waistband, a lycra fly and interior pocket with keycord, these boardshorts are made to help you get there.

As part of our continued efforts to Green Up, we are reviewing and improving on the way our garments are made. We use cotton throughout our collection from T-shirts to boardshorts. Cotton is a renewable resource, but its production is vulnerable to poor environmental management and working conditions. How can we make sure that the cotton we use is sustainable?

That's what led us to BCI.

BCI stands for Better Cotton Initiative and it is a non-profit organisation that promotes better standards in cotton farming. A hard fact is that the clothing industry is among the top five biggest environmental polluters. BCI is doing its part in moving the cotton sector towards sustainability.

The main aims of BCI are:

- Preservation of the soil
- Conservation of the water
- Protection of the environment
- Promotion of decent work

These aims are largely achieved through the education of the cotton farmer. Farmers are instructed in and encouraged to use more sustainable farming methods. Drip irrigation is promoted instead of flood irrigation, which significantly reduces water use. Instead of harmful pesticides, natural deterrents are promoted. This includes introducing insects that feed on pests, instead of using poisonous and expensive insecticides. And on a social level, the farming community as a whole is educated on how they can bring positive change, the importance of schooling for their children and improved personal health.

Cotton is used in 40% of all global textiles and 300 million farmers worldwide rely on cotton for their livelihood. By showing the farmer how to grow crops using less water, insecticide and fertilizer, cotton can be a viable crop. With the help of BCI, the cotton sector is moving towards sustainability and this means a sustainable future for our industry. This season we are using BCI certified cotton in a range of men's and women's T-shirts and tanks.

THE GREEN CHALLENGE UP

Protest is on a journey to Green Up! And as part of this journey, we are asking our riders to help inspire people to do their own part in living more sustainably. This summer it was the surfer girls' turn as Alazne Aurrekoetxea and Laura Coviella show us how they Green Up.

Green Up the Ocean

Alazne and Laura chose to carry out their 'Green Up' project in Costa Rica. Why Costa Rica? Well, the girls wanted to learn from a country that puts sustainability at the center of everything they do. In this jungle-covered Central American country, 98% of the energy is renewable and 25% of the land is allocated as protected land. And what did they do there? Well, Alazne and Laura were both keen to help the efforts to keep Costa Rica pristine while also taking advantage of the excellent surfing to be had along this country's palm-covered shores. So the girls combined these two themes. After talking to local eco-minded organizations, they helped tidy beaches of discarded single-use bottles. Once the bottles were collected, the girls crafted the waste together with some sustainable bamboo, into a new kind of board – a green board. The girls then surfed the Costa Rican waves with these 'Green Up' boards. Awesome!

Are you curious to see how the girls' Green Up adventure turned out? And also to get an inside look into this tropical land and its vision of sustainability? Then keep an eye on Protest's landings page: www.protest.eu/greenup, where we will shortly be releasing this amazing new project. Make sure you don't miss anything by following our social media channels: YouTube, Instagram, Facebook.

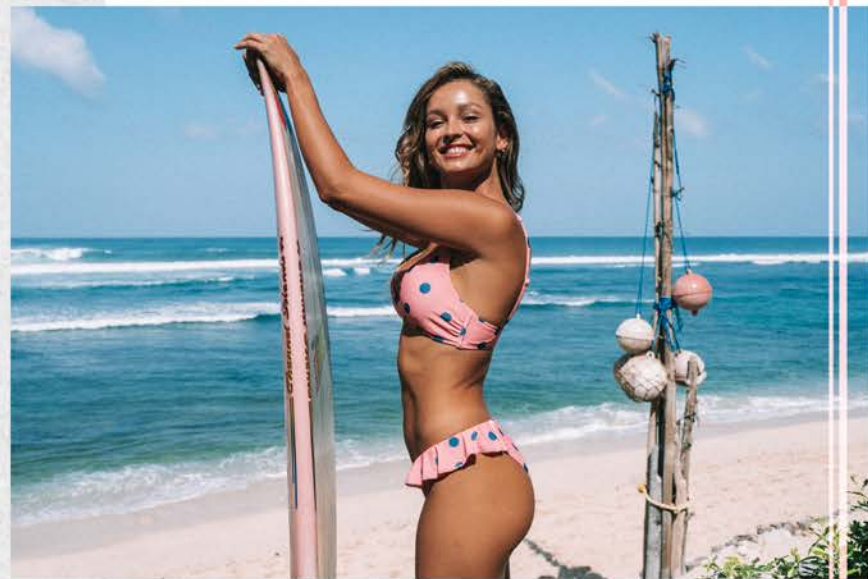

the Sup Surf collection

Life is best enjoyed on a board. We want to help you get out there so we've created this awesome group of technical surf and sup clothing. In our efforts to Green Up, this range has been created using recycled polyester and is also PFC-free. The fabric used to create this group has SPF50, acting like a sun block wherever the skin is covered by the garment. Another feature of these surf/sup pieces is 360degree stretch for unrestricted movement. In this group a small scale zebra print is combined with a striped design and solid colour. Within the range, there are rash guards, leggings, bikinis and a surf/sup suit. Nothing will get between you and the water in this fantastic series of clothing.

SURFABLES MEN

Here at Protest, we believe in the chase...the chase of the wave and the chase for the best product to help you get there. It is who we are and what we do. Our mission is to help everyone ride more. Life is, after all, best enjoyed on a board.

This season we present a collection of functional boardwear in which we have merged design with the technical properties that allow you to get the most out of your ride. There are short sleeved rash guards: Legundi, Cater and Yakov. Our sustainable long sleeve rash guard, the Ailmer, is made from recycled polyester and offers maximum coverage. These essential pieces of boardwear are all made using fabric that has a built-in SPF of 50. This means that the skin covered by the fabric is protected from the sun's powerful rays. The technical fabric is stretchy as well as being quick drying. And of course, these pieces can be combined with every pair of swim shorts or boardshorts in our collection. Then we have the Feargus surfable shorts. Styled like a pair of regular shorts, these shorts are functional swim pieces as well. Our surfable shorts are quick drying, and there's a rubber print on the inside of the waistband so that your swim shorts stay in place. This revolutionary piece of clothing is super comfortable and features 4 way stretch so you're free to do the craziest of moves. It's time to get chasing.

BY PROTEST

Protest creates for the riders, for those who best enjoy their life on the water or on a mountain. We work with a large group of inspiring international athletes who truly live for their sport. It's stating the obvious that this last year has been out of the ordinary for our athletes. These riders would normally be travelling the world competing and producing awesome content for our brand. How have they coped and how did they use their 'to get there' attitude to get things done in the last year? We asked our athletes to get us a brief recap:

Athletes of the sea

KEVIN
Bourez

This season has been weird, but living in Tahiti made going through this crisis a little easier. This time spent at home has really made me appreciate the beauty of the islands, as I have travelled between the other islands of the French Polynesian archipelago, practicing my surfing. Together with Protest, I am creating a series of five videos in which I surf Teahupoo, Tahiti's infamous surf break. Each film will feature me surfing on a different retro board in difficult conditions. I'll surf on a single fin, a twin fin, a speed fin, an asymmetrical fin and finally a finless board. That last one is the one I'm most excited about – and nervous. There's a solid south swell coming up to welcome me into the water. So watch me tear this up!

LAURA
Coviella

'I was in Lanzarote for the winter training for big waves and barrels. The Covid situation at the beginning of the year was quite bad but now we are able to fly to some places, so that's good! In April, I went to Costa Rica where Alazne Aurrekoetxea and I were creating our Green Up idea with Protest. It was an awesome project, where we learnt more about sustainability from a country that is leading in its green initiatives. We stayed an extra week so that we could create some cool Protest content and to get some training in! I went straight on to Santa Cruz in Portugal to participate in the QS competition. For later in the year, I'd love to go to Puerto Escondido in Mexico for a month to train in barrel waves – also a great opportunity to create some sick content. There are plans for the QS series to commence in France if Covid regulations lift so I've got my fingers crossed for that.'

TRISTAN
Guilbaud

'2020 was definitely a strange year full of unexpected things but I made the most of it! Due to Covid-19 regulations, I was stuck in New Zealand for four months. Not a bad place to get stuck, right? It was a great opportunity to explore and discover a new pace of life. Back in Europe I started a new training program to have me ready for the European surfing competitions, which started again in May. I've been training in South-West of France, where I've already had a great season of surf. The waves are fun, also perfect for shooting some cool content. My goal is to be in Europe's top 10 so that I qualify for the Challengers series, in which the world's top 90 surfers compete. I'm now 8th in the European ranking so it's looking good for qualification.'

RODERICK
Pijls

'So far this year, I've been to Brazil, Spain, Italy and Bonaire, surfing and creating amazing Protest content. This year started off in Brazil and although the travel meant loads of Covid-19 tests and other restrictions, it also meant I had found paradise. It was palm trees, wind, waves and warm weather. I followed this idyllic time with some serious training in Tarifa, Southern Spain. I concentrated on wave, freestyle, big air and race techniques in kite surfing. This was followed by more training in Sardinia and Bonaire. In the upcoming period I am really looking forward to packing up all my gear in my van and driving to Europe's best spots like the South of Portugal for some great freestyle waves. Here we'll be shooting awesome lifestyle and action content for Protest.'

GASPARD
Larssonneur

'I've been training a lot since last December to prepare for the European part of the QS. I have just returned to France after a great 3rd place finish in Santa Cruz, Portugal, a QS competition. This is one of my best results and I am super happy about it! The QS is an international series, which has had to break down into parts in order to carry on. That is one of the many affects of the Covid virus has had on surfing. I have also been doing some surf trips to Panama, the Canary islands and Hossegor, in order to train and to create new Protest content. Perfect weeks of just surfing! I am looking forward to future contests and trips.'

MARIA Kuzma

Hi there! I'm new to the team. My name is Maria Kuzma and I am a snowboard freerider, architect and sustainability warrior. I am part of an all female crew creating under the name 'Surreal snowboarding'. Our aim is to use art and experimentalism to express the unique surreal nature of snowboarding. Thanks partially to support from Protest, we are creating a film about how snowboarding can create a new reality from our existing one, hence surreal. Combining filming and Covid-19 restrictions has been interesting! The fact that we were filming gave us access to the slopes and because a lot of resorts were closed, we had the place pretty much to ourselves. I'm now looking forward to the summer, when I will continue my 'Recycle+Build' and 'Nu Cycle' projects, where my team and I focus on designing and building with innovative waste-derived materials and implementing sustainable decentralized systems including rainwater harvesting and subterraneous waster water filtration.

*New
to the team!*

ANDRI Ragetti

'The season was a lot more difficult and challenging because of Covid. During the events that did take place, we had to take regular Covid tests and the Swiss Freeski team, of which I was a part, had to separate and live in our own 'bubbles'. That being said, this has been my most successful season yet! The most important event for me had to be the World Championships because I hadn't yet won a medal at this event. Here I landed my last of three runs perfectly and ended the competition as World Champion 2021 in Slopestyle. So stoked. I won the first Slopestyle World Cup of the season, which took place in Stubai. Later I also won my first X-Games Gold medal in Big-Air in Aspen, US. I was aiming for a double gold but in a split second everything changed. I crashed on my last run and needed knee surgery. It will be 9 months of recovery. I will work as hard as I can to come back stronger. My plan is to be back on the snow in October and competing in Stubai again in November.

Athletes of the snow

This winter season went well for me, despite the fact that the ski resorts in France remained closed during the whole season because of the Covid 19. Fortunately I don't live far from Switzerland, where I could ski and have been doing so a lot! I managed to place 5th in the Freeride World Tour, which I'm super happy about. The parts of the tour that went to Japan and Canada were cancelled so the tour stayed in Europe. It was a strong season; everybody was riding so well. This meant that to make it to the podium you had to ride even better and make a really nice line of tricks! This made it challenging and also rewarding. I have also been ski touring a lot and filming in the mountains of Chamonix. To summarize this season in 2 words: always fun.

ENZO Scotto

Of course, this season was tough. All the ski resorts were closed. But this meant that we had the time to discover a new face of the mountain. The focus was the basic. It wasn't about who had made the most runs during the day, but about priceless moments with friends and family in unforgettable places. I spent most of my time ski touring around Chamonix. We moved around and skied down new runs : Les Contamines , Megève, Courchevel , Meribel. And when the snow wasn't good, we paraglided, sometimes with our skis on! Yeah, always good times on a mountain. We created our very own snow park in a forest and made sure we got the best footage by using a FPV drone and photomaker. We've also started a back country project and these different projects together, have resulted in some epic content of next season.

CAMILLE Armand

Corporate Social Responsibility

Corporate Social Responsibility or CSR is our way of taking responsibility for the impact that our business has on people, the environment and the society as a whole so it's linked to sustainability as well as ethical work standards. As part of our continued efforts to Green Up, we are reviewing and improving the way our garments are made. Within the production process, we are striving for more people-friendly and green practices. Here is how we are achieving this:

- Protest is a member of Amfori BSCI. The goal of this organisation is to improve social performance in global supply chains. This means we offer safe, humane working conditions and fair pay. There is no child labour. The factories that we work with are regularly screened to ensure these standards are upheld.
- Protest complies with the REACH standard, which addresses the production and use of chemical substances. We don't use fabric dyes like AZO or PFC treatments that are harmful to people and animals. All our suppliers get a tailor-made Protest Restricted Substance List to make sure that no harmful substances are used in our products. We have our products tested at Textile Lab and Bureau Veritas.
- As part of our effort to Green Up, we use a range of materials, from recycled polyester to bamboo charcoal made with minimal impact on the environment. With this season, we are introducing organic to our collection. This is cotton grown more sustainably, with production emphasising the preservation of water, the enrichment of the soil and fair labour conditions. We use Oeko-Tex standard 100 fabrics. For our packaging, we use recycled cardboard and plastic. As of the year 2023, we plan to be PFC-free.
- As of the spring/summer 2022, we are using the Higg index to assess the social and environmental impact of our supply chain. This index allows us to achieve measurable results and track our improvements. Every part of our process is followed and assessed from the management system to transport and distribution. This measure will help us pinpoint areas that need attention and help us further on our journey to Green Up.
- We don't use denim sandblasting.
- We care about animal welfare; we use alternatives to real duck down and we never use real fur or angora wool.
- Our products are transported by sea in an effort to reduce our carbon footprint. Transport by truck or by air would be one hundred times as much.
- Our head office in the Netherlands is powered by our own supply. Ten thousand solar panels have been placed on the roofs of our buildings, putting us in the Top 10 of the largest solar panel surfaces in the Netherlands. Today we don't just produce enough for our own energy needs; we also put electricity back in the system.
- Our clothing is designed to last a really long time; we choose durable materials and well-made constructions to reduce the need to buy more and thereby reducing the impact on the environment.

With every day we realise the effects that we as humans are having on this earth. In order to keep living our mantra 'to get there', we need to do all we can to protect the environment that we call home. Join us on our journey to GreenUp.
